POETRY.

From the American Monthly Magazine, LA GRISETTE.

AH! Clemence, when I saw thee last Trip down the rue de Seine,
And turning, when thy form had passed,
I said "We meet again;"
I dreamed not in that idle glance

Thy latest image came,
A shadow and a name.

The few strange words my lips had taught Thy timid voice to speak; Their gentler signs, which often brought Fresh roses to thy cheek;

The trailing of thy long loose hair, Bent o'er my couch of pain; All, all returned, more sweet, more fair-O, had we met again !

I walked where saint and virgin keep The vigil lights of Heaven, I knew that thou hadst woes to weep,

And sins to be forgiven; I watched where Genevieve is laid, I knelt by Mary's shrine; Beside me low, soft voices prayed,

Alas! but where was thine? And when the morning sun was bright, When wind and wave were calm, And flamed in thousand tinted light,

The rose of Notre Dame; I wandered through the haunts of men, From Boulevard to Quai, Till, frowning over Saint Etienne, The Pantheon's shadow lay. In vain, in vain. We meet no more.

Nor dream what fates befall, And long upon the stranger's shore My voice on thee may call;
When years have clothed the line with mose

That tells thy name and days, And withered on thy simple cross The wreaths of Pere la Chaise.

BOSTON MORNING POST.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 6, 1836.

STENOGRAPHIC GLIMPSES OF CONGRESS. Washington, April 1, 1836.

Senate .- After a debate all day, continued till after 8 o'clock this evening, on the subject of admitting Michigan into the Union, the bill passed to be engrossed. The amendments, numerous and frivolous, were mostly rejected. The debate was animated and interesting; and the contest throughout strictly a party one, and the result a party triumph. I have no time for particulars.

The Senate will sit to-morrow, and consider the subject of admitting Arkansas into the Union, and probably decide in her favor; and that without much delay, unless the question of slavery should be mooted, for the purpose of embarrassment and procrastination.

House .- Private business only was transacted.

REIS EFFENDI.

Sweet Sensibility. The National Gazette has the following remark respecting a late session of the House of Representatives, which was postponed until after midnight of a Saturday evening.

"The members who were concerned in this gross violation of the moral and religious sensibilities of the people of the United States, should be visited with the severest indignation. To prolong a miserable party debate, for the purpose of accomplishing a miserable party object far into the Sabbath, desecrating the sacred day and scandalizing the nation by a shameful exhibition of paltry, unhallowed passion, is an insult and a crime which cannot be denounced in language too strong. If such examples be set by the assembled wisdom and virtue of the country what is to be expected from its vice and folly."

The unhallowed purpose and scandalous tricks of the opposition, to retain Mr Graham in a seat to which he had no right, and thus to cheat the majority in Congress and in the North Carolina Congressional District, by attempts to evade taking the question, meet with no rebuke Is the title of an article in the last American Magazine, from Mr Walsh. He only rebukes Congress for sitting till Sunday morning. Where was the pious sensibility of this Bank parasite when the peripatetic Senators harangued made a considerable figure in the pelitical world about the maititude from the steps of a tap room in Baltimore, of eightee n years ago. His death, I remember, created a Sunday, during the Bank panic ? Hoot upon such canta great sensation in England. He had been a member ing hypocricy! The only real offence of Congress, in the eyes of this editor, was the sending home of a whig who had no right to his seat. The course of the opposition on this occasion was eminently disgraceful-it can only inconsistent with his known political sentiments, and al career, and their forcing the proceedings into Sunday with the wishes of his constituents, among whom he morning was the least of their sins on the occasion. The whig members only, which includes all the nullifying disumuch-loved member an explanation of the course he nionists, are responsible for this desecration of the Lord's had latterly pursued, not doubting but it must be per- day, and if the National Gazette has any conscience left,

The U. S. Bank .- Mr Biddle, it is said, is re-issuing the old and paid Bank notes of the National United States able landholders in the county were present. The Bank, at the counter of his Pennsylvania United States speech which he delivered at the close was a singular Bank, so called. All these bills when once paid, become medley. With much of sound political reasoning, and dead, in law, the charter of the Bank having expired, and states man-like policy, there were mingled opinions and the re-issuing them by this new corporation cannot give principles which the most fanatical Jacobin would have them any new legal life. No corporation, neither the old hesitated to utter—principles of an alarming tendency, yet advanced with an earnest warmth which left no doubt of his sincerity, and maintained with an acuteness bound to redeem them again. The view of him throughout the evening. He remarked, as law creating the Bank having expired, the provision for he said, an unusual wildness of the eye and tremulous punishing those who may counterfeit those bills is dead, ing the baronet with a fixed look of astonishment under which a counterfeiter of these revived, dead notes, with perhaps a slight mingling of indignation at what he can be punished; and we may soon expect to see the country flooded with this counterfeit paper. But there is this table at which he was speaking, and for the space of a advantage in it, that the false will be just as good as the minu te fixed on his astonished constituent a glare of ab- genuine notes, nobody being bound to redeem either. HANCOCK ENGINE CO. NO. 10. At a meeting of Hancock Engine Co. No. 10, held Monday eve'g, April 4th, the following Preamble and Resolu-

Whereas, the late trial of Doct. Wm. J. Walker, of Charlestown, for an assault and battery on Mr Isaac Cook, a member of Hancock Engine Co. No. 10, was conducted and carried through Court by the town of Charlestown, agreeably to a vote of the Selectmen of that town, and as the citizens of Charlestown at the town election last week re-elected those same men, thereby manifesting their approbation of the proceedings of the above Selectmen Therefore,

Resolved, That we view with surprise and astonishment the proceedings of the town of Charlestown in employing an attorney for Doct. Walker, and defraying the expenses of his trial; they in so doing, showing their approbation of, and acquiescence in, that memorable occasion which gave rise to the trial in which Doet. Walker was

Resolved, That if we continue to go to Charlestown to assist them in case of fire, as we heretofore have done, after having been insulted and trampled upon by the citizens of Charlestown as above stated, we should be showing ourselves destitute of that independent spirit which characterizes the Boston Fire Department, and should be subjecting ourselves to the merited contempt and ridicule of our Bos ton firemen. Therefore,

Resolved, That when an alarm of fire is given at Charlestown, we will not take our Engine, or go ourselves as a Company to assist them in any case whatever.

Resolved, That we likewise respectfully recommend to our brother firemen to abstain from going to the above stated place for the same justifiable reasons.

Resolved, That we pass the above resolutions more in sorrow than in anger; not that we wish to injure the citizens of Charlestown, but that we do wish to retain the City property in our care as we found it, and more than all, to preserve the lives of our members from lawlessness

Resolved, That whenever we have occasion to call for surgeons, if we intend to call for Doct. Walker, we will give him sufficient notice to have his instruments sharper and longer, as the ones he used on the last occasion were not of a sufficient length to do the execution he wished.

Resolved, That we return our sincere thanks to the Past Chief Engineer of the Charlestown Fire Department, and a number of other gentlemen of Charlestown, who at the trial at East Cambridge gave us the honor of originating the word of "walk-her-up," which all of them swore they never heard used before.

Resolved, That we entertain the same feelings towards the Charlestown Fire Department that we always have done, viz. those of the most cordial friendship, and we would take this opportunity of presenting our sincere thanks to the officers and members of Warren Engine Co. No. 4, and others who appeared as witnesses in our behalf, whose minds cannot be biassed by Charlestown Big Bugs. Resolved, That the above Resolutions be published in the Boston Morning Post, Daily Evening Transcript, Daily Reformer, Daily Times, and all papers friendly to the

Roasted Pigs whipt to death .- Charles Lamb thus discourseth upon this excellent viand :-

" Of all the delicacies in the whole mundis edibilis, I will maintain it to be the most delicate-princeps obsoni-

" I speak not of your grown porkers-things between pig and pork—these hobbydehoys—but a young and tender suckling-under a moon old-guiltless as yet in the stywith no original speck of the amor immunditiæ, the hereditary failing of the first parent yet manifest-his voice as yet not broken, but something between a childish treble and a grumble-the mild forerunner or præludium of a grunt.

"Behold him while he is doing—it seemeth rather a refreshing warmth than a scorching heat that he is so passive to. How equally he twirleth round the string! Now he is just done. To see the extreme sensibility of that tender age, he hath wept out his pretty eyes-radiant jelliesshooting stars.
"See him in the dish, his second cradle, how meek he heth! Wouldst thou have had this innocent grow up to the grossness and indocility' which too often accompany maturer swinchood ! Ten to one he would have proved a glutton, a sloven, an obstinate, disagrecable animal-wallowing in all manner of filthy conversation-from these sins he is happily snatched away— ere sin could blight or sorrow fade,

Death came with timely care his memory is odoriferous-no clown curseth while his tomach half rejecteth the rank bacon-no coalheaver bolt- ! eth him in reeking sausages—he hath a fair sepulchre in the grateful stomach of a judicious epicure—and for such a tomb might be content to die.

" Our ancestors were nice in their method of sacrificing these tender victims. We read of pigs whipt to death with something of a shock, as we hear of any other obso-lete custom. The age of discipline is gone by, or it would be curious to inquire (in a philosophical light merely) what effect this process might have towards intenerating and dulcifying a substance naturally so mild and dulcet as the flesh of young pigs. It looks like refining a violet .-Yet we should be cautious, while we condemn the inhumanity, how we censure the wisdom of the practice. It might impart a gusto.

'I remember an hypothesis argued upon by the young students when I was at St. Omer's, and maintained with much learning and pleasantry on both sides, "whether, supposing that the flavor of a pig who obtained his death whipping (per flagellationem extreman) superadded a pleasure upon the palate of a man more intense than any possible suffering we can conceive in the animal, is man justified in using that method of putting the animal to death." I forget the decision."

The Jewess .- So much had been said and written in advance of the production of the strict to active the Tree contact and what oil had been the flourish of trumpets-that we had actually began to be somewhat sceptical of its real character for unrivalled magnificence, and its claims to proper a service. Thus prediscrutimize its pretensions strictly, we, on Monday night, deliberately set out its performance-no painful penance-with the intention of giving a brief description of its scenery, plot, and incidents, and recording our humble judgment upon their general merits.

The political and social condition of the Jews, in the early portion of the Christian era, furnish ample materials for the most exciting and gorgeous dramatic spectaclesthey were then, as as they are now, a peculiar people, and their practices and principles continually exposed them to the bigotted tyranny and persecuting spirit of their christian masters. This magazine of dramatic material has but seldomly been drawn upon by dramatists; and the play in question is one of the rare and successful instances.

The theatre of events developed in the Jewess, is laid in the celebrated city of Constance on the Rhine, famous as the seat of the four years Catholic Council, from 1414 to 1418-a period when Constance was the uninterrupted scene of ecclesiastical pomp, power, bigotry, and crueltyof monks and martyrdom.

The drama opens with a view of the beautiful and timeworn monuments of Gothic architecture, the cloisters and Cathedral of Constance, executed by the artists of the Tremont in a style that absolutely leaves nothing to be desired; an irregular groupe of minstrels in chorus announce the dawn of a grand religious festival-a long procession of cardinals, bishops, priests, and nobles enter the cathedral, and no christian citizen dares to disturb the august solemnities of the occasion, by plying his daily avocations. Not so, however, with the heretical Eleazerthe wealthy Jewish Goldsmith-the clink of his hammer is heard from his dwelling, and his profane desecration of the hallowed day draws upon him the vengeful notice of the populace in the street below. With the swift vengeance of popular indignation, his sacrilege is denounced, and himself and daughter, the beautiful Rachel, are dragged forth as victims to appease the infuriated mob. From this imminent peril they are rescued by LEOPOLD, a prince of the Empire, in the guise of a Hebrew, and under the name of Reuben, who, although the husband of the princess Eudocia, is secretly enamoured of Rachel.

Leopold is only successful in saving the lives of Eleazer and Rachel, upon condition that they leave the city in three days. In this stage, Eleazer learns that a mutual attach ment exists between Leopold and Rachel, and it is agreed that the three shall retire into banishment; but before the necessary arrangements are concluded, Eudocia (Leopold's wife,) visits the house of Eleazer, for the purpose of purchasing a highly prized relic of Charlemagnechain—which she purposes to present to her husband, whose arrival, crowned with military triumph, she expects on the ensuing day. Unconscious of the presence of her husband, Eudocia completes her business, and retires, leaving Leopold struck dumb with the embarrasments of his situation. Explanation and retreat is impossible, and he suddenly proposes instant flight to Rachel-Eleazer overhears the proposal, and attempts to assassinate Leopold, who in turn is shielded by Rachel. Eleazer then proposes instant marriage on the spot, which Leopold perceives will only double his difficulties, concludes to extricate himself at once by flight from the house, and rushes out, followed by Rachel, who traces him to his own habitation, which she also enters, and offers herself, and is accepted, as a domestic to Eudocia.

The scene now changes to one of prolonged, brilliant, and dazzling imperial splendor-the march of the Emperor Sigismund, mounted, over the bridge across the Rhine, with his innumerable suite of princes, prelates, ambassadors, nobles, and knights, with emblazoned banners, and gleaming retinues, and martial music. Any attempt to pourtray the varied features of this pageant must neces-

The Banquet Hall in the Palace follows, crowded with the illustrious guests of the Emperor, with its galleries of music, minstrels, and spectators. This scene is the chefd'œuvre of the piece-the regalia of the Emperor, the robes and coronals of the ambassadors, paraphernalia of the dignitaries of the church, and glistening armor and appointments of the knights, realize all our pre-conceptions of the heraldic glory of the middle ages-and though its brilliance defies description, it is by no means an exaggeration, but is rather a faithful chronicle of that celebrated period, when the external signs and symbols of christianity absorbed the minds of men, and saints and soldiers alike "stole the livery of heaven to serve the devil

The glory of the assembled court is Leopold, whose deeds and same are upon every lip. The Emperor pledges his health, and to his utter confusion, a cup is handed to him by Rachel, whom he had not before observed-his consternation again unmans him-Eleazer arrives with the gold relic of Charlemagne-Endocia essays to present it to her busband, but Rachel springs forward, snatches it from her hand, and in the presence of the assemubled host, denounces Leopold's perfidy. The sentence to death of Eleazer, Rachel, and Leopold follow; but at the agonizing solicitations of Eudocia, Rachel retracts her charge against Leopold, who is reprieved. Eleazer and Rachel are condemned to be burnt to death in a cauldron-the President of the Council, Cardinal de Brogny, offers at the Lion, to-night. them pardon if they will abjure their first faith, and turn christians. Eleazer refuses, and threatens De Brogny with an exquisite revenge: De Brogny supposes that he has lost a daughter by fire many years before, till Eleazer tells him that he rescued her from the flames, but, with fiendlike exultation, declines to tell him where she is-no promise or threats can prevail upon him to reveal the secret; he is put to the "question," but outbraves its tortures, and resists its power; he is brought to the esplanade on a bier, well. Pelby is not often caught napping. his wrenched limbs laying powerless, to witness the appalling preparations of his ferocious persecutors for his own and his devoted daughter's death, and as she ascends the platform for execution, the films of death cloud his eye- men on Monday-petitions to have Hawley and Lynde sight, and he imagines he sees her enter the burning cauldron, and then cries out, with demoniac trsumph, but hap pily in time to prevent her immolation, that she is De Brogney's daughter. Eleazer, insensible of her rescue, dies from the effects of the torture, and she is restored to exist in the respective wards. There is a member of the

POLICE COURT.

No pay no Beer .- " My feelin's have been shamefully hurt," said James Prentice, when he preferred his complaint against Luther Burley, the bar-keeper of the Bite.

Magistrate. - What has happend ? Prentice.—Why, yer honor, I went in and ca-call-called for a glass of be-be-beer, and putting my hand in my pocket, I found that I couldn't find more than a cent to pay for it with, and so I told him .- With that he called me all the from the Committee on Commerce, reported a bill making rascals and scoundrels you ever did see, and quicker than I could think of what was coming, he springs at me, worse than one of them 'air wild animals, and instantly afore I had time to git my hand fairly out of my pocket, he seized me round the body with a terrible assault, and throw'd me right out doors, clear, and very much agitated me, I do declare-yes, I do declare I was very much agitated.

As Prentice, during the mention of the attrocious assault he had received, shook as if he would actually tumble to ieces, and the flesh upon his bones quivered like calveslly in a ricketty kettle, his honor thought it necessary to tell him, that there was no occasion for any more agitation, as he was then out of danger. His Honor then asked the defendant why he had so unceremoniously maltreated the complainant.

Bar-keeper .- I can prove he was honorably put out of Prentice .- Honorably did you say ?- to frighten one so

I vow, I was never so frightened in all my life. Magistrate .- Is there any witness that he was proper

Witness .- The gentleman came in, and called for a glass of beer, and put some sugar in it, and said he had got but one cent to pay for it with, -so the bar-keeper told him to clear out four or five times, or he would put him out-and as he would'nt go, he led him to the door and nushed him out.

Magistrate .- Complainant, do you hear that? Prentice .- Oh yes, indeed, I hear it-and I think I can see it now-I never was half so much frightened in all my life,-I was positively frightened I do assure youfrightened decidedly.

Witness .- He said the cent was all the change he had, unless the bar-keeper would change him a hundred dollar

Magistrate.-Complainant, how is that; you said not word of this? Prentice .- O, my dear sir, it can't be correct-O, sir, there is no truth in it ! O, sir, what a lie ! I never said a word about $100, upon my sacred honor-No, 'pon honor,

Witness .- It is often the case, that men come in and call for liquor, and drink it, and then say they have no

Prentice .- I ain't a man that does such things-I ain't o such person, I can tell ve-I've carried milk to some of the best characters in the place.

Magistrate.- How could you get into such a difficulty -I see how it is, you could not have known what you were about—that beer was the cause of your trouble.

Prentice.—If I had never been born, I should never have known what trouble was. And that they should go for to say such things-I can call some physicians to show that I ain't a man to belie myself.

Magistrate .- The only question here is, whether I shall fine the defendant the nominal sum of one cent, at the utmost, or discharge him .- The complainant's conduct is certainly very strange, and the case turns out differently from what he first represented. Let the defendant be discharged. Prentice.—If that's the way of it, all I have to say is, that if some people get to Heaven, I think my chance will be worse there than it is here. Exit, shaking his head, and bringing down his right foot

A SIXTH FILL FOR DR. DAVENPORT.

To the Editor of the Boston Morning Post. Sir-I have been so blind as to be unable to see to walk with out a guide for the last eighteen months; and have been un-der the care of three physicians of this city, who exhausted their efforts in vain, and a fourth, one of the most eminent physicians, gave it as his opinion, that as my eyes had been so much injured, it was impossible for me ever to recover my sight so as to be of any service to me.

I have attended upon Dr. Williams nine days only, and this morning I was able to see, and did follow a triend of mine, at a little distance, to his apartments, without any assistance whatever; and I can distinguish almos' every large object. I think it to be a duty I owe to my fellow-creatures, that although I despaired of receiving the least benefit from any person whatever, I was encouraged by several gentlemen to apply to the aforementioned oculist, on the 23d of March, since me I have received the relief above spoken of.

As a preparation for the skin is in preference to all others, as an indispensable toilet requisite, Sustainer of a Fine Complexion and conservator of female beauty in all climates, and during all stages, in the progression of life from youth to age.

Rowland's Kalydor is a highly estimated and great favorite with female Rank, the most distinguished Nobility, &c. and is zealously recommended by the most eminent of the Faculty.

and is zealously recommended by the most eminent of the Faculty.

The ingredients of Rowland's solely genuine Kalydor are extracted from the most beautiful Exotics, and are of the mildest nature—Warranted perfectly innocent, yet powerfully efficacious as a thorough cleanser of the skin; it eradicates Tan, Freckles, Pimples, Spots, Redness, and all Cutaneous Eruptions, and transforms into radiant brilliancy the most sallow complexion.

The Kalydor gradually produces a clear and soft skin, soft as velvet, gradually realizing a delicate white neck, hand and arm, and giving a healthy and juvenile bloom to the complex-arm, and giving a healthy and juvenile bloom to the complexion.

To Mothers Norsing their offspring, it proves a healing balm in cases of Inflammation and Soreness of the Breast, and is warranted perfectly innoxious to the most delicate lady or infant, to whom it affords soothing relief.

Gentlemen after shaving, will find it allay the irritating and smarting pain, and render the skin peculiarly smooth and pleasant after travelling.

Its soothing and ameliorating properties immediately allay the smarting irritability of the skin, produced by cold whind, or damp atmosphere, assuages Inflammation, heals harsh and rough skin, removes cutaneous eruptions, and produces a beautiful camplexion: and affords scothing relief to ladies nursing their offspring, in healing soreness, &c.

A valuable supply of the above, just received from A. Rowland, by their Agent, at the London Importing Warehouse, No 36 Cornhill, formerly Market street, where it may be had by wholesale or retail.

DAVIS'S CHEMICAL VEGETABLE
Liquid Oil Soap.

This article, by a proper application, removes grease spots and all other substances, from Carpets, Woollen, Cotton and Linen Garments of every description, without injuring in the least the color or texture of the goods. It restores them to their original lustre, and may be used with perfect safety, even on the finest fabrics. It is particularly recommended for cleansing Coat Collars, so apt to become soiled by the hair. It is also extremely useful in all cases of Sprains, Bruises, Corns and Rheumatism. It is likewise a remedy for Scalds or Burns of any description, relieving the pain and effecting a cure more readily than any article hitherto used for the purpose. Ample directions for its application, in all cases, will be found on each bottle.

There is so much convenience and economy in its use, that

There is so much convenience and economy in its use, that no person, having once tried it and ascertained its virtues, would ever afterwards be without it.
